What do we do?

Planning and design are crucial to a successful workspace implementation. Storr's interior design professionals match your work processes, aesthetics and functional requirements with the most cost-effective solutions. Great things happen when you place state-of-the-art design tools in the hands of experienced workplace experts. From initial needs analysis to final design realization and product specification, Storr's experts can help you to a solution that guarantees increased efficiency and productivity.

How we do it.

All our designers have a four-year degree in design from an accredited school and their formal education is supplemented by ongoing training from our manufacturer partners and other resources. Our designers have in-depth knowledge of the products and materials at their disposal. More importantly, they are solutions-oriented experts on current and emerging workplace trends, both in product design and work styles. The result: a team of dedicated professionals with the ability to create solutions for your project that assure a perfect fit with your specific needs.

Why do you need it?

Crafting a solution for today's technology-intensive information workers is a complex and multi-faceted task that consists of four key stages:

- ▶ Programming – identification and analysis of specific client needs.
- ▶ Space Planning – development of initial design concepts through schematic and block plans.
- ▶ Design Development – selection of interior finishes and full realization of the overall design.
- ▶ Documentation – preparation of furniture specification and installation documents.

Each stage calls for professionally-trained experts and that's just what you'll find when you turn to Storr as your interiors partner. You'll find our interior design expertise one of the cornerstones of our organization and a key component of project success.
